Sound Gardens

Room 340 - 6:30 to 8:30 PM

Sound Gardens will be hosting a tranquil sound experience with gongs, chimes, and bowls.

Taco Party

Loscon 40 is hosting the Taco Party, in or near Room 329 tonight. We'll have carnitas, chicken mole, shredded beef, rice, soyrizo, black beans, cheese, nacho cheese sauce, guacamole, hot sauce, sour cream, freeze-dried jalapenos, tortillas, tortilla chips, and other fixings and things to go with a taco, while supplies last. Special late-night bonus: Cajun-Style Pulled Pork. Loscon 40 will be Thanksgiving Weekend at the Los Angeles Airport Marriott, and this year the theme is "Let's do the Time Warp. Again." If you miss the party, look for us at our fan table on the mezzanine. ~Chaz Boston Baden

Re: My Pest Problem (Part III)

by Marina J. Lostetter

The Department of Special Inquiries continues to suggest unorthodox methods of exorcism.

If the entity fails to get the message, there are only a few options left to you.

Normal spiritual cleansing will not work if your ghost is lost. After all, it has no real connection to your location. It’s like trying to evict a dementia patient: No matter how many times you try to explain that there are no pictures of his grandchildren because you are not his daughter, and that it is not 1983, he just will not stop crawling through the doggie door, and I’m sick of it--

Sorry.

But you get the point.

What you really need is a supernatural repellent--something that works to eject all spirits, regardless of their attachment. I hear there’s a yeti scalp in Tibet that’ll do the job. And a mermaid’s fingernail in Namibia. Ghosts find all cryptid body parts highly offensive. The more mummified the better.

If all else fails, track down the location of its body’s death (I can only assume it died in an apartment complex, as we don’t have much else to go on). If it insists on haunting, it should at least haunt the proper parties. Do your best to pawn the entity off in secret, as the residents will not thank you.

Will Mr. Winchester ever be rid of this irksome ghost? Wait until our next issue!
